Demodeling of defective plumbing and sewerage in the case of M. A. Dauphin against Postmaster-day delitings a specialty.

Hundreds of references from some of the best citizens given. Have in store and flited up ready for the construction of fire sciens plumbing, which I most respectfully invite the public to impact before placing their orders. Also a fine assertment of Drop Lights, Portables, Globes, Heating and Gas-Saving Burners of all kinds, Nursery Caps and Sandes, all of winds: I am selling at very low prices. Remember the best public for the cheapest, and in this case the cheapest is the last.

C. G. THORN,

The courted in general form was thronged yester day to listen to the argument and proceedings in the case of M. A. Dauphin against Postmasters of the bar and other well known elligens. Chief-Justice Cartier and Justices Hagner and James were upon the bench.

Senator Carpenter, C. W. Moulton, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Messrs, Bartley and Southard and E. B. A. Dauphin to the place from which they were mailed.

to M. A. Dauphin to the peace from which they were mailed.

Mr. Freeman said that the original order had been amended so as not to include letters addressed to M. A. Dauphin individually before the bill was filed, and the counsel so informed.

Senator carpenter thought that statement would do to put in the answer.

Mr. Southard resumed the reading of the bill.

Chief-Justice Cartter said as the bill had not been printed and could not be placed before them, he desired to know what issues they had there and if the private correspondence mingled in the bill.

Southard claimed that the point was dis-Mr. Southard claimed that the point was distinctly and explicitly averred.

Judge Ray, for the defendant, said that a demurrer had been filed. There were no letters legitimately private letters, and so specified, and they did not refer to other than lottery business letters. The bill was brought against the Postmaster-General as a citizen of Fennessee. To this they demurred, and thought that no such bill could be brought. The defendant denied the jurisdiction of the court. As Postmaster-deneral, he has custody of all matters pertaining to that Department, and claims that as the letters to the complainant are in the interest of a lottery, which is forbidden by law, that he has the right, under the law, to prevent the circulation of mall-matter in further-ance of such schemes.

At this point the question areas, as to which wide prevent the circulation of shall-matter in furtherance of ruch schemes.

At this point the question arose as to which side was cutified to precedence in the argument. The counsel for the petitioner claimed it on the ground that they filed a petition for an injunction, which had not yet been granted; and while the defendant put in a denurror conceding the truth of the allegations in the bill, still that did not convey to the latter the privileges of the argument.

The defense contended that, as a rule to show cause had been laid upon them and the demurrer put in, the burden restellation than and they were entitled to the opening and costing. Senator Carpenter said that the demurrer had not been set down for argument and was not before the court except as an impeachment for the answer. They might concede the strength of the demurrer and then claim their injunction on account of no answer or the insufficiency of the answer.

He read from experie Jackson, 6th Otto, to show that the law determined not only what should be carried, but what should be excluded from the mails.

Senator Carpenter—That was a case of hubens corpus, and the court held that the cause could be brought, the court fry and putish, but not that the postmaster could try it.

Judge Ray insisted that the Postmaster-General, under the provision of the statute establishing the registered letter system, had full and undisputable power to take the course that he had pursued.

Senator Carpenter wished to shorten the case, and said he should admit that, if this act of Congress was Constitutional, then the order of the Postmaster-General was genuine and proper. But he should insist, and believed that he could establish, that the Postmaster-General had no right to accure, try and condemn, substitute himself in the place of the courts, and, as the head of a common carrier system, specify who shall enjoy these privileges and who shall not. Judge Ray said that if the act was unconstitutional then the rollef was against the aubordinate who obeyed his superior's orders, and not against the superior who gave the unconstitutional that he superior who gave the unconstitutional order.

He asserted that matter concerning lotteries was not mailable matter. The law so expressed it, and that law had been declared to be Constitutional. The bill of complaint should allege that the mail withheld was not of a lottery character.

Senator Carpenter—How can we when we cannot get hold of it and set it up in the bill?

Judge Ray said that it was matter prohibited by law from passing through the mail and legally withheld from delivery.

Judge Ray the that it asserted that an officer of the Government could not be restrained from the performance of an unconstitutional act has not set up such a doctrine, but did hold that where the President of the Government could not be restrained from the performance of an unconstitutional act had not set up such a doctrine, but didnoit dis engaged in banking, wh mall service, and then be told that the condemned could not come into a court of equity and have justice done him by the process of injunction, if such a course was found necessary.

The lotteries may be wicked and those engaged in them sinners, but it appears at one time they were not so looked upon. The very building (City Hall) in which the court sat was erected through the aid of lotteries, and those crying out loudest now for the suppression of them should get high lest their voices fail to surmount the steeple. He had been told that other buildings in this city had been erected in the same way.

This lottery in Louisiana was not a scheme; it was organized and operated under a contract with the State, and the latter is paid $40.000 a year for permitting it to continue in operation. The law granting the charter was voted for by both Republicans and Demograts in the State legislature, and there could not be any political significance charged with its creation.

He argued at some length upon the jurisiletion of the court, and maintained that an unconstitutional act was invalid. If the provisions of the statute were unconstitutional, these he would constitute were unconstitutional, these he would constitute were unconstitutional. He had a man and the law sections 29 and 30, were plainly and faily unconstitutional.
